04-02-2011 10-15-2011 Download Windows V2 Download. engine in cyborgs die hard.There are many types of portable air pumps which are used for inflating automobile tires, bicycle tires, boat tires, etc. Commonly known examples include: U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,863,718 and 3,867,627 to Capatina; and U.S. Pat. No. 4,486,068 to Zimmerman. In addition, there are many types of hand-held vacuum pumps and generators in general use today. An example is the "electro-pneumatic" tool patented by Robert P. Severance in U.S. Pat. No. 3,827,326. A search of the patent literature has revealed additional variations on portable air pumps. For example, Lochan states in U.S. Pat. No. 3,502,151 that his invention "is directed towards a unique design of a safety-pump which can be conveniently handled and positioned for its operation. The invention has particular utility for filling a pneumatic tire with compressed air without exposing the operator of the apparatus to any hazards associated with the customary method of connection to the air hose-to-tire." In U.S. Pat. No. 3,654,654, Lochan discloses a "pneumatic tire pump and feed mechanism", which, again, can be considered a safety pump. Manpower and time are ever increasingly important considerations. The elimination of unnecessary manpower while simultaneously providing a more efficient and reliable tool is the goal of most inventors. U.S. Pat. No. 4,068,660 to Reinhold sets forth a "Pneumatic Tire Repair Tool". Therein, a pneumatic pump tool is described which has a trans-mountable pneumatic air pump and a squeeze frame. The air pump is an integral part of the tool itself and can be easily attached to the air hose or removed when not in use. Other U.S. Patents which show portable air pumps and tire inflating tools include U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,937,189; 3,648,406; 2,876,740; 2,819,892; 2,198,836; 2,016,835; and 1,172,820. It is noted that the wheel inflating tool of U.S. Pat.
